Info sheet on the counting procedure, seat distribution and mandate

In the case of direct candidates in a department, the person with the most votes is elected. The remaining direct candidates, who have received at least one vote, form the reserve list. If a direct candidate drops out, they are replaced with the next candidate on that list.

In the case of list candidates, either a list or a candidate on the list can be elected. The mandates are awarded to the list according to the votes it can accumulate (election of the list and election of a person on the list). The mandates are allocated in the ratio of the list election and the election of persons. If, for example, 70 votes are allocated to the list and 30 votes to persons on the list, which receives 3 mandates, one mandate is allocated to the person with the most votes and two mandates are allocated according to the list order (places 1 and 2). If the person with the most votes is placed 1st or 2nd on the list, the mandate is awarded to the next person on the list who has not yet received a mandate. The other persons on the list form the reserve list and move up according to the same procedure.

The distribution of seats on the list is carried out according to the Sainte-Laguë/Webster method (which is used, for example, in the Bundestag elections) using the maximum number method. Here, the number of votes of each party is offset against several divisors (starting with 0.5, then 1.5, then 2.5, etc.). The resulting numbers are "worked off" from the highest number, with one seat being allocated to the corresponding party for each number. This is repeated until all seats to be allocated have been allocated.

"The members of the Student Parliament are obliged to attend the meetings of the Student Parliament and to participate in committees appointed by the Student Parliament."
